Pricing Unique Properties
3 hrs. CE, course #39056

Most agents have some experience with estimating the price of a property. When the properties have unique features or located in unique areas, estimating market value is more difficult. This course will assist real estate license holders in learning about paired sales analysis, cost estimating, and other methods for arriving at values. It will also help license holders become comfortable with the overall process, making adjustments, and where to go for more information on adjustments. The course will provide a hands-on experience in preparing a unique CMA and where to find information that can be used in day-to-day scenarios, to better assist their clients.
